Stance:	Customer objects to the Planning Application

Reasons for comment:

Comments: I object wholeheartedly with this submission for planning, an unnecessary, ineffective and selfish construction of homes that offer nothing but to line others pockets. The lack of substance and understanding of what the village needs is highlighted through this application.

A village that is already let down by the infrastructure it has found it self with will only be crippled further by this addition. A village with one GP practice, couple shops, remote narrow country lanes, flood weak points upheld by surrounding fields, insufficient bus service which has only become more limited. These are only few named examples as to why this village can't support this addition. Planning and review comes from people that don't get to see the obstacles already prevalent in the village, these stances need to be used as a point of view to understand the difficulties we face at this current time.

To conclude, the planning application rejects the idea of British conservation by ensuring every blade of grass gets built on, denying people the opportunity to enjoy the tranquility that the countryside can provide, this would be the catalyst and microcosm for what is wrong with this county and country.

Kind regards
