Reasons for comment:
Comments:	I understand the need to use empty buildings to support or enhance the local community however this proposal seems to be a quick fix to earning money rather than meeting a community objective. Yes there is a park there but that's to encourage people to exercise, be out in the fresh air and meet other people for social interactions. A fast food restaurant next door is hardly going to align with this. The Wrotham Road is already heavily congested and will become more so once the works for the lower Thames crossing starts as this will be a major access road to the new M2/2. The air quality in our area is poor at the moment and will get worse with the extra traffic. A restaurant will generate more unpleasant smells and increased rubbish being strewn around the area by inconsiderate customers. Please do have a rethink. Can this being not be used for something more needed locally? Health centre, meeting/office spaces for small Businesses trying to get off the ground, somewhere for young people to meet in a controlled environment?

Kind regards
