Reasons for comment:

Comments:	Considering the property constraints (13) and the High Court Injunction (HQ09X02792) there can surely be no question of allowing this to even be considered for approval. Added to which, the destruction (Criminal damage?) of the lanes countryside character, apparently under protection in the first of the 13 constraints mentioned above, during and after the time when the illegal caraven was moved into it's current position by the felling of many mature trees and hedgerows on private land or otherwise. At the same time illegally closing the road (and at least twice since - once when bringing Septic tanks on to the land). Furthermore the Bulldozing of yet more hedgerows to form 2 new (unapproved and possibly dangerous) entrances without prior application, consent or any study of the safety of either - One is very near a tight bend - or the use or lack of use of Council approved contractors that any other person would have to abide by. All of the above have an effect on traffic (illegal new entrances), Trees/Landscape (The destruction of which mentioned above and photographed) Unapproved very high brick walls and lastly fumes from the burning of many piles of rubbish.
