Reasons for comment:

Comments:	As a Gravesend man all my life and having family from the town working on the river going back at least 8 generations... The Peacock was a much loved pub and a symbol of the town's old school working class values which are still very much apparent. A Mosque is not needed in this part of town... And only acts to unsettle the harmony of it. It's in a part of town which has a significant Sikh population and White working class... Sikh men would also often use the Peacock as well as the Irish community. I don't just object to its use as a Mosque, I believe it's a community asset which should be saved, cherished and reopened as a pub ASAP
