Reasons for comment:
Comments:	I have watched that first licensing panel meeting and I have read that objection from environmental protection team that they write to the panel this is used to be a mid terrace house in 2008 the landlord made this is a business class building without any planning approval more recently senior environmental protection officer mention that there for this building became illegally as a business class who bought this business recently that person also did breach planning regulations he did extend on the back site also build a extra upstairs room and stairs for upstairs so it is going to spoil next doors resident entertainment and when people walking upstairs throughout the new proposed stairs they going to. See next door back garden so it will be a disbenefit.

Kind regards
