Reasons for comment:

Comments:	The public highway in front of Camer Parade has already had to be modified because of the lack of parking spaces, and general inconsiderate parking by some people. Adding more cars to this area would be utter chaos. It just ends up with people parking on yellow lines, in bus bays and on verges. The traffic associated with an additional 360 properties is unimaginable - deliveries, 2-3 car families. And new houses tend not to have parking for all the cars, so they end up parked on the road. The A227 just cannot cope with and more cars and with the Lower Thames Crossing being given the go ahead Meopham will become part of a rat run. Anybody travelling down the road at school times, or during the many road works this year, will know that it can take over 40 minutes to get through.
