Reasons for comment:

Comments: The planning application drawings are confusing as the elevations are labelled with the wrong orientations and so I am worried about the curtilage of the extn and the effect it will have on the size of the finished house. The photo used as an example of an existing view out of a window [REDACTED] on the South side, not the North [REDACTED] where issues have been expressed with loss of light. It is also very difficult to understand the scale of the external dormers at the rear and front garage extension and how that will impose on my home.

Overall it is in keeping with the other houses in the road and appears to be a good compromise on previous applications, although building over the drains in the back garden is a worry.

Kind regards
