Reasons for comment:

Comments: I've lived in Harvel for nearly 20 years and bought here with the appeal of a pub being over the road in a rural area. This has been a hub for young and old including walkers, Duke of Edinburgh participants, a running club and young farmers meetings . Work is passed around to different tradesman on recommendation and new people welcomed as they move in to the area. pensioners have a hub and somewhere to keep in contact with everyone and ongoing events in the village. The closure of the public house that has been here since early 20th century has destroyed a huge part of community cohesion.

Kind regards
