Reasons for comment:
Comments:	The proposal is for 150 houses which essentially means around 300+ cars in what is a thin country road, which would be extremely dangerous and cause untold traffic jams, gridlock and pollution. The railway line is already bursting, with commuters standing and the bus service is almost non-existent, how are all these people going to get to work from these houses? The strain on the GPs in this area is going to be ridiculous with it already been overstretched and people unable to get appointments. This area is also farmland, are we going to keep losing all our farmland to houses, how are we going to produce our own food in this country if we keep doing this? Why do we keep building on greenbelt when there is plenty of brownbelt and disused land that can be used. Once it is gone it is gone!

Kind regards
