Reasons for comment:

Comments: [REDACTED]

Having read through the documentation and given due consideration to the plans, I wanted to point out that one of the areas described as a 'car port' is a building which is actually attached [REDACTED] property and has always been a fully enclosed structural stable block for the last 90+ years owned [REDACTED]. The previous owners [REDACTED] removed one of the structural walls before selling this building to [REDACTED].

My concern is if this building is demolished, whether it could have ramifications for my property structurally after being attached for such a long period of time? Would this also be subject to a party wall survey, process and agreement?

Before any decision is made by Gravesham Planning Department, I would be grateful if you could visit [REDACTED] inspect the area in question to see how this would potentially impact [REDACTED] adversely.

Kind regards
