Reasons for comment:
Comments:	I understand this is Greenbelt land, which is being destroyed. With 8 caravans, that is approx 40 extra people / vehicles etc. The rules used to be for houses built along this round / surrounding lanes they were restricted as to how big to build their houses - presumably to keep the area a nice place to live and not overcrowded with people / vehicles etc. Also applying for permission retrospectively is not right - these people have already done work knowing they needed to apply for planning permission in advance and playing the game. What about the local amenities - I doubt they can cope, already know the roads flood when bad weather, doctors don't seem able to cope when the patients they already have, the list goes on. We need to preserve our village, rather than keep destroying it.

Kind regards
