Reasons for comment:

Comments:	This area of land has had previous planning applications put forward which have, time and again, been refused. The applicants move mobile homes onto the land first and seek retrospective permission every time. The trees on the lane leading up to the land have been severely damaged, with some literally 'ripped' by the mobile home just crashing through. Other trees have been hacked with a chainsaw, just leaving the whole area looking like a tornado has been through. The applicant has a blatant disregard to the wildlife, trees or the countryside and the area will end up being concreted over for further caravans to arrive. The area is a haven for wildlife and the section where the site is based was undeveloped. The applicant is hoping to set a precedent here and will not stop until the field is a full blown caravan site.
