Officer Analysis

Under the General Permitted Development Order 2015, a dwelling house can extend at single storey level to the side subject to conditions. In this instance the proposed development falls within the confines of the GPDO.

The below measurements confirm the heights of the extension and it will not extend beyond the principle elevation.

Conclusion

The proposed single storey side extension falls within Schedule 2, Part 1, Class A of The Town and Country Planning (General Permitted Development) (England) Order 2015, as amended and as such planning permission is not required.

Recommendation: Grant Lawful Development Certificate
