Reasons for comment:

Comments: We have lived in Harvel since 1989 and brought up our two children in this lovely area. One of the reasons we moved here was the sense of community which revolved around the public house which is only 200 yards from our home. For a number of years it has been badly run and in slow decline.

When we saw it closed, we presumed that, at last, a new owner would revive its fortunes as it is certainly viable if run correctly. We now see that a change of use is sought. This will remove a great potential asset to the local community.

I see that building work has already started on the pub, I presume that this is without planning consent. What is the point of controlling planning if it is ignored. The current owners just seem to want to make a profit from turning a commercial property into residential. We need to keep this asset for our local community.

Kind regards
