Reasons for comment:

Comments: After the closure of the original Amazon and Tiger (now Forge Cottage) the new building for the Pub was designed in such away to look like a house and not a public house. This was to prevent parishioners from being drawn towards the pub on their way to the church which used to stand at the beginning of St Frances road.
The building therefore, has always looked like a house.
Change of use of the pub would not make any difference to the appearance of the village as the outside of the building would remain the same.

Kind regards
