Reasons for comment:
Comments:	With additional build of 100 houses, there would be a minimum of 2 cars per household. This will severely impact our air pollution along the a227. This will also cause a lot of traffic problems which are bad enough as they are. This will also cause drainage issues, which will increase the flood risk in the area. The build and the houses will also significantly impact the local environment and biodiversity of the area. It was damage all local wildlife that already use the fields for their food and habitats. Including the protected species of bats and birds recorded in that specific area. Once you've destroyed these habitats for the wildlife you won't be able to get them back. They've referred to this area as a grey belt which is just layman's terms for building on a green belt. This site does not fit the criteria for grey belt as it has not been previously developed. Don't build here.

Kind regards
