Reasons for comment:

Comments: Ruining vital fields/grasslands and green spaces is deplorable. These spaces are not only crucial for wildlife but for people as well. Enough green spaces have been destroyed for housing and animals along with it. In a time of extreme climate crisis we should be focusing on protecting our green belts/ green spaces not destroying them for housing. Especially when there are numerous brown sites/abandoned houses that could be repurposed for houses long before we ever should think about bulldozing and building on fields and woodlands. Not to mention the infrastructure, the roads are simply not designed for such a massive increase in traffic, the doctors surgery already has months long waiting lists, the shops and school have no parking, nor the spaces to cope with such a higher number of people. Public transport in this area is also not set up to support such a sudden increase.

I think building here is a massive mistake, I think it's disgusting to even suggest it, especially when there are brown sites etc to use up first. Again, we should be doing everything in our power to protect what little natural places we have left in the face of climate change and dwindling wildlife numbers. No to building on the green spaces in Meopham.

Kind regards
