Reasons for comment:

Comments:	My reasons for objection are. A small narrow lane that it only suitable for 1 vehicle, not a 2 way road. There will be more volume of traffic that the road cannot cope with. Tight, blind spot corners. Potentially you could have 50 people with several vehicles on site that the lanes cannot cope with. This is green belt land that should be protected in an area of outstanding natural beauty. There are already 14-15 caravans/tourers spread out across the site. Despite plans not being approved there are caravans arriving daily. This in itself should be a massive red flag for objection. You cannot apply for planning & just do it anyway. There are rules in places that should be followed. There has been lots of damage to the surrounding area with trees that are very old being cut down in order to get all of these caravans on the site. No one is being held accountable for any of the damage. Again, something that should be considered when making any final decisions. There is lots of rubbish being dumped along the lane because the site does not have any means to dispose off by local dust carts. The land was originally proposed as a stud farm, yet there are no horses on site, just caravans. People that currently live on the land have property in Gravesend. This should something to be considered. They are using schools etc as an excuse when there are plenty of schools newer to their properties their children can attend. The caravans are the start. Then there will be additional plans for houses to replace the caravans.

There are businesses being run with the site with very large vehicles going up & down a tight lane.

Kind regards
