Reasons for comment:

Comments:	I am writing to formally object to the planning application for additional homes on the recently approved traveller site in our community. This objection is grounded in a firm belief that the council's decision to approve this site, despite a high court restriction, is not only concerning but sets a dangerous precedent for our community. Firstly, the fact that the council has reversed its previous decision to reject this site raises serious questions about the integrity of the planning process. Approving an application that had previously been subject to a court order demonstrates a troubling disregard for legal authority and the rule of law. This reversal, coupled with the swift submission of a new application for additional homes, signals an alarming trend where local governance appears to prioritise expedience over community welfare and legal compliance. Secondly, the positioning of additional homes prior to the approval of planning permission is not only premature but indicates a blatant disregard for the established planning process. Such actions undermine the trust that residents place in the council to uphold planning regulations and ensure that developments are carried out in a manner that respects both the law and the community's interests. The local residents are deeply concerned that this application will be detrimental to our area. The proposed developments threaten to disrupt the tranquility and character of our quiet community. We fear that increasing the density of homes in this location will lead to overcrowding, further strain local resources, and negatively impact the quality of life for existing residents. In conclusion, I urge the council to reconsider this application not only for the sake of maintaining the integrity of our planning process but also to protect the character and well-being of our community. Approving further homes on this site would not only set a bad precedent but also demonstrate a lack of respect for both legal authority and community sentiment.

Thank you for considering this objection.
