Comments:	This Conservatory has been constructed in very nice materials and too totally in keeping with the house and its style surroundings, it all marries up beautifully and has been carried out by a top quality respected builder and respected Architect too. All is in keeping with the House design which can be seen in using very high quality materials. This owner has a lot of land comprising of front garden and side garden and rear garden running the full length of the property so this conservatory has not taken up more than the overall space and percentage of the total outer garden area, it keeps within the allotted space very well, it too is considerably much lower in height than the house garage height of the building and does not interfere with blocking any light out from any neighbour. There are many other Conservatories built in Ashmore Gardens and Foxberry Walk on houses so really dont see an issue at all and seems one neighbour is very jealous of another house owner in all this having a nice conservatory being built.

Kind regards
