Reasons for comment:

Comments:	This land is still Green Belt and all objections based on protecting this designstion remain - we cannot be expected to repeat it all at each stage of the process. The homes are not in keeping with the surrounding landscape, are an eye sore with no refuse collection. Waste of all kinds has been dumped in the bushes - do they have mains waste ? It is not a true gypsey site - the caravans are static and it is clear employment involves building works as vehicles go up and down the lane, blocking traffic and you can see rubble waste stored on site from the railway bridge. How can planning permisdion have been given for the wrong site ? Overdevelopment, no tangible evidence of how many vans will be on site
