A historic lightship which was transformed into a floating art space will not be returning to its permanent mooring in Medway.

The LV21 had been moored at Gillingham Pier for several years before moving to Gravesend last summer and owners have now confirmed they're staying at their new home.

Päivi Seppälä said she and fellow co-owner Gary Weston had been working with Kent County Council, Gravesham council and the Port of London Authority to acquire longer term moorings but stressed they remain on good terms with Medway Council.
