We write in connection with the above planning application.

We are [REDACTED] neighbours and had not been made aware of any changes to the original application. No notice as far as we can see has been displayed publically.

We were not opposed to the original adaptaion to the building. However, the garden room shown on these drawings was substantially smaller and on the other side of the garden. Was this not drawn to scale?

It is now appears to be an enormous structure for a garden room 6m x6.6m x 4m high - this suggests that the intention is to over time change it's use. It is a bungalow by ant other name. Although this is a guess it is not an unreasonable assumption and should be considered.

Why does it have garage doors - there is no vehicular access to the back of the property?

We are in an AONB and this should be a protected status and we do not understand how this can even be entertained.

In light of the above we register our objection to this planning and would appreciate an explanation of how the plans have been able to change so significantly.
