Reasons for comment:

Comments: Where to begin with objecting: so many responses to stop this proposed development.
Firstly the heritage of the green space in a historic area, fields and space much needed for survival of many species of wildlife that are being wiped out due to overdevelopment of the areas in Kent and nationwide.
Green space and farm land is much needed to ensure villages retain their status and farms can provide for generations to come.
The infrastructure of this area will never cope with an influx of what will be a minimum of 700 vehicles. The surrounding roads are already on the brink of near permanent gridlock.
Water: Kent simply does not have sufficient reserves to accommodate housing developments on this scale.
Schools, hospitals and doctor surgeries are already at capacity-it's utter madness to think the area can cope with well over 1,000 new homes being proposed.
Gravesham has many brown field and derelict sites that should be prioritised to develop for accommodation and health centres before open greenbelt land is destroyed forever.
People in these areas pay a premium to have access to open spaces, by building on this scale makes villages towns and where will this stop? It doesn't create jobs, it creates more destruction and social and economical issues.
The police force cannot manage the influx of the volume of people being loved to these areas.

The future of the environment must go ahead of profit and unrealistic figures from central government.

Kind regards
