Reasons for comment:
Comments:	Longfield Road has two schools sited in close proximity to the turning from the A227. It is already dangerous for children crossing because the road is so busy. More houses will inevitably lead to more traffic along this already busy road and driving to and from new houses will be very difficult and dangerous. The Helen Allison school has severely autistic children on its role. The noise and disruption of building work right by this school would be extremely detrimental to some of those children.

Kind regards
