Technical survey

As one of our quality-control procedures, we carry out a technical survey to make sure that the designs you have chosen are made to the specifications required, and that we can carry out your installation safely and accurately to the highest possible standard. The surveyor will also be responsible for deciding where to place trickle vents if needed. The fee you pay for this separate service is on top of the cost of the product and installation, and so is not included in the balance shown above.
