Reasons for comment:
Comments:	The woodlands park area is filled with young children as well as old, putting another Mc Donalds in Gravesend would have disastrous consequences for health. There is already an obesity epidemic with children, even though the NHS is fighting it daily at a cost of £98 billion each year! Figures reveal obesity affects 1 in every 5 children, aged between 5 and 11. The amount of traffic and noise pollution along the road will increase, affecting those who suffer with breathing difficulties. A risk of extra litter and debris in the street and surrounding area, which will be left to GBC to clear up and will cost. There will be an increase in antisocial behaviour on a relatively quiet neighbourhood, impacting on the residents that live opposite. There are multiple school located along the road and McDonalds would be seen as an easy option to get breakfast and lunch, which contain a very high amount of salt, fat and sugar. I am against this proposal and there should be consideration for the National Planning Policy Framework, which outlines: Local planning authorities should refuse applications for hot food take aways and fast food outlets, with in walking distance of schools and other places where young people congregate u less the location is in a designated town (town centre) and in locations where there is evidence that a concentration of such is having a adverse impact on local health, pollution and antisocial behaviour.

Kind regards
