Reasons for comment:
Comments:	Having a masjid and madrasah in a community provides both spiritual and educational benefits that strengthen the social and moral fabric of society. The masjid serves as a central place of worship, fostering unity, brotherhood, and a sense of belonging among Muslims through congregational prayers, Friday sermons, and community events. A madrasah complements this by offering structured Islamic education, teaching the Qur'an, Hadith, and foundational principles of faith to children and adults alike. Together, they nurture both the heart and the mind, encouraging moral development, discipline, and a strong connection to Islamic values from a young age. This holistic environment supports the preservation of faith and the cultivation of a righteous, informed community.

Kind regards
