Reasons for comment:

Comments:	With over 100 objections already on the previous application. GBC should seriously consider all the reasons to reject this repeated application. Green Belt. Out of character. The blight it will cause on immediate neighbours. Insufficient access in a narrow lane for touring caravans to come and go. (There has already been a fatality in 2024, as a result of a car accident). Light pollution, as confirmed by the brightness of lights already put up. The applicant has blatantly ignored the previous rejection, and thought it perfectly ok to block the lane for 3 hours whilst trying to manoeuvre his static home onto the site, which is now in situ. What's to say he will adhere to any future planning stipulations? Should GBC ignore all the concerns from the neighbouring residents and feel it's ok to approve this revised application, then I'm afraid you'll set a precedent for us all to put on static homes & day centres on our own plots, offering them out as dwellings for people who can show special circumstances.
